Freezer Beef Mix Helps Producers Hit Quality, Harvest Targets

Bourbon County beef cattle farmer Andrew Fritsch has been finishing out beef for his and his neighbor's freezers for his entire life.

"We always feed out 2-4 steers a year. Quality is everything to us. We pride our farm on producing top-quality beef," said Fritsch.

"Last year, we had four steers that I needed to finish by October 1. We were feeding them Blue Ribbon, but as fall got closer, I realized they needed a little boost to get them where I wanted them to be by their harvest date. I called Matt Watson at Jabetown Mill, and he suggested this Freezer Beef mix.

We started feeding it about 90 days before slaughter. The cattle ate it good, and it worked. I think especially in that last 45 days, we saw a big jump in their gain. All four finished between 1100 and 1400 pounds. Our target weight is 1200, so we were pleased. It's become our go-to for finishing. We've got two more that we'll harvest this fall who are on it right now."

Fritsch hand-feeds his steers, but Freezer Beef Mix is high enough fiber that it can also be used in a self-feeder.

Steers that will be harvested this October.

Thank you for once again filling our Facebook page with pictures of your good boys and girls during our Farm Dog Fridays in June. We love all the pictures you submitted! This is just a sample of the great pictures we got - visit our Facebook page to see them all.

May's Lick Mill welcomed state and local leaders to host an award presentation for State Representative William Lawrence. The award was presented by the Partnership for Commonsense Justice to Lawrence for his efforts to pass legislation that protected small businesses, healthcare, and schools from frivolous COVID-19 lawsuits.

Shout out to all the truck drivers - both Hinton Mills and those outside vendors hauling to our locations - who have kept inputs coming in and product going out all through the past year. Pictured is Roger Riehl who drives for Calvin Haughaboo.
